Many of us in the engineering community know the advantages/disadvantages of our and competing technologies but no one likes to bad mouth another companies product in front of potential clients.

It would be nice to have an open engineering forum to talk about technologies without company names (i.e., Calgon, Osmonics, Betz, etc.)

Thank you for your comments and suggestions.

The overall discussion on the status of EPA's, the DDOs, the and the participating states investigation into perchlorate is well done. The facilitation of the 2nd days disc discussion went much better.	The focus on only CA & NV is disappointing, because this is an an problem has boundaries that reach further than these two states. For example: Utah, where we have 3 areas w/ confirmed contamination and have a potential of four other sites. This problem isn't just CA & NV's problem
